LULLABY OF LONDON

As I walked down by the river side
One evening in the spring,
Heard a long gone song from days gone by
Blown in on the great North wind.
Though there is no lonesome comrade's cry
Of sorrow and delight,
You can hear the tears and the shouts from bars
And the laughter and the lights.

May the ghosts that howled round the house at night
Never keep you from your sleep.
May they all sleep tight down in hell to night
Or wherever they may be.

As I walked on with a heavy heart
Then a stone danced on the tide,
And the song went on though the lights were gone
And the North wind gently sighed,
And an evening breeze coming from the East
That kissed the riverside.
So I pray now child that you sleep to night
When you hear this lullaby.

May the wind that blows from haunted graves
Never bring you misery.
May the angels bright watch you to night
And keep you while you sleep.
